AERONAUTS

est attitudes at this stage of the journey. The wind had a strong drift to the northeast, and as we dropped a little lower and, passing under the wing of the great ship, its speed was about 100 miles an hour.

"We could see from the character of the country below us that it would be almost impossible to make a landing, so we decided to go on. We again went into the higher levels and at one time our altimeter registered 10,000 feet, which is the limit. We then saw in the distance what we supposed was the town of Northampton, Lake St. John. This was at about 11:30 a. m. on Wednesday.

"The country looked favorable for a landing and we decided to come down. The speed at which we were going, however, carried us beyond the place we had picked out. We were carried over a small hill. Considering the circumstances, we made a very good landing on what we later learned was to the east of the Penobscot river and near a chain of small lakes.

"A very heavy thunderstorm came up and we slept in the basket that night. The next morning we saw it was impossible to move the balloon and we packed up for the journey on foot. We slept in the woods Thursday night.

"After we had covered about seven miles along the shore of Lake Chigouana, we went into camp early, knowing it as comfortable as possible by using balsam boughs."

Here Mr. Hawley interrupted Mr.

Pee's narrative to explain how his boat was lost.

"We were going through a dense thicket of brush and fallen trees and making very poor progress. In working my way through I stepped on what looked like a solid log. I continued on my way and my whole weight was suddenly thrown upon my right leg, which bent under me."

"I can stand a good deal of pain," said Mr. Hawley, "but I never had anything take hold of me like that and."

Again taking up the thread of his story, Mr. Pee said:

"On account of Mr. Hawley's injured leg, we took it easy Friday and went into camp early. On Saturday, on the shore of a small lake, we camped upon the cabin of Jacques Malais. He was absent, but we enjoyed his hospitality for that night and the whole of next day. Unfortunately the cabin was bare of supplies.

"About a o'clock Monday morning Mr. Hawley went to the edge of the lake and shouted 'Hello!' several times. The call was answered and in a short time Josef Penaud and Josef Simon, two trappers, paddled up in a canoe.

"After explaining the situation to them, they readily agreed to aid us in reaching the nearest habitation. We went by canoe to Lake Blanche, where we camped Monday night. Our new found friends caught some trout and we enjoyed the first good meal in a long time. The remainder of our journey to Chicoutimi was comparatively easy.

"We really suffered greatly from the cold as we tramped slowly away from the America II. We were seriously hampered by the goods we had to pack, for it was absolutely necessary to take along our heaviest clothing besides the remaining food. Frequently we waded through streams of ice-cold water. So cold was the weather that at times our clothing was frozen to our bodies. When we came across the trappers the fourth day we could have cried for joy. We were saved all in."

Hawley arrived about noon and was the first man up today. He again went after the balloon. The harness shows he went up over one foot yesterday. Latham started in a four hour duration contest and only made four laps, but won first money. When the hour ended Hawley was last to view in the sky and may have at last set a new record.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE ORPHEUM.
See the J. J. Lewis company in that farce comedy played at the Orpheum this week. A clean, refined entertainment for ladies and children full of good laughs and funny situations. "Milkedown's Picnic," presented by four funny comedians, a pony ballet of four very pretty girls and four vaudeville acts throughout the performance. Orpheumscope feature film. Matinees at 2:15.

GREAT SOUTHERN THEATRE.
J. E. Dodson in "The House Next Door" will be the attraction at the Southern Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 2 and 3. In "The House Next Door" we have the finest comedy acting of the year. Mr. Dodson's performance of Sir John Cutswold in its vein of unobtrusive irritability, its evenly sustained humorous effect and its flawless execution, is altogether inimitable.

Robert Hilliard appears at the Southern on Friday and Saturday with a Saturday matinee, November 14, in "A Fool There Was," a hilarious play by Porter Emerson. Because that has found great value in New York since a year ago last Spring, Mr. Hilliard has come into his own in the virility with which he personates an up-to-date and distinguished American who falls beneath the spell of a vaudeville woman. The scenic production, including a crowded ocean liner of the sailing boat, Virginia Peterson as the villainess, Stella Anderson as the victim, and the sister.

MELBA AT MEMORIAL HALL IN COLUMBUS.
Miss Melba, the world's greatest and highest salary prima donna soprano, will sing in Columbus at Memorial Hall on Thursday evening, Nov. 3.

Since Miss Melba's Canadian-American tour began at Halifax, N. S., on Sept. 1, she has had a succession of triumphs, and the people of Columbus are anxious to show the great American singer and the world their full appreciation of the gifted daughter of a sister British colony.

In Halifax and everywhere else the audiences were so large that the management of the theatres found it necessary to sell from 200 to 300 persons on the stage, and from the hall, which Melba's coming has caused. It would seem that the Columbus manager will have to follow the example.

Miss Melba was born Nellie Mitchell. Her father and mother were

SCROFULA

HEREDITARY BLOOD POISON

Scrofula is a disease manifested usually by a swelling and ulceration of the glands, especially about the neck. It is almost entirely hereditary in its origin, being the dregs or remains of some specific blood poison. Where the blood is greatly weakened by the scrofulous poison, the disease attacks other portions of the system besides the glands, and then we see its effects in the form of poorly developed bodies, running sores and ulcers, skin diseases, especially on the scalp, catarrhs of the eyes, etc. Scrofula usually makes its appearance in childhood, though men and womenhood may be reached before the poison progresses to the stage of outward manifestation. S. S. S. is the one real cure for Scrofula. It is a blood purifier without an equal, and it cures this destructive blood poison by removing every trace of the impurity from the circulation. S. S. S., in addition to cleansing and purifying the blood, assists the stomach and digestive members in the creation of new blood corpuscles and other nourishing matter for the circulation. S. S. S. increases the resistive powers of the system and by strengthening and building up the vitality, allows nature to make a perfect and lasting cure. Little Problems of The Home.

A Couple Who Planned for a Happy Old Age.

I T was a case of drifting apart or growing together," said the man. "And I decided we should grow together."

His listener was an interested woman, so he told his story. There is matter for thought in it for many a husband and wife.

There was the usual happy love affair and marriage, and at the time when he took a special hand in shaping their future, there was no need to feel apprehensive. Many a couple are living just as they were, only they do not read the little signs as did this man.

He was literary and musical in his tastes, given very much to spending his evenings with a book or magazine, fond of attending concerts and operas. His taste was good in these matters. He enjoyed only the best. He did not care for trash.

She showed little liking for such things. She was fond of outdoors, of tramping, riding, golf. She also liked cards.

When they were first married, this difference in tastes was not so noticeable. They were so wrapped up in each other that they had not begun to take notice yet of other matters. But as time passed, the husband began to see how things were drifting.

Many a man would scarcely have noticed this little breach, or if he had noticed it would not have thought it worth while to mend it. But this man did not think it unimportant. He looked ahead at the years to see just what it would mean. And then he decided to take hold of the matter resolutely and to plan for congeniality instead of indifference in the old age.

His wife was a woman of more than the average intelligence. He knew she could become interested in fine literature and music, and get as much enjoyment out of them as he did once her interest was aroused. It was not that she was incapable of appreciating these things. It was simply that she had given them no attention. They had never entered her life in any forceful way. He determined they should.

So he talked the matter over with her. They were yet so thoroughly one that they could discuss it earnestly, lovingly. She saw his point and she admitted the reasonableness of it. Only, she argued, that it was but fair that he take an interest also in her pleasures. This he agreed to; that is, he agreed to the outdoors, but not to the cards, for, he said, there was no pleasure in cards in themselves. Their enjoyment was purely ephemeral. Thus they deliberately planned for finding pleasure in the same things as they grew older.

The experiment was most successful. The sixties with whitening hair. But their tastes are one. They are seen at musical affairs together thoroughly enjoying themselves. They are welcome members of a select little literary circle. The world of music and books has opened to the woman a realm of delight of which she never dreamed, and which yields unfailing and permanent pleasure. On the other hand the man has been awakened to the beauties of outdoors, and not only finds keen pleasure in nature, but health as well.

Fortunately, they choose those pursuits which have intrinsic and lasting enjoyment in them. And they began when they still were willing and able to adjust themselves to each other's tastes. They saw in time the tendency to drift apart and took immediate measures to make for themselves a little haven which would afford delight and joy to them both.

Love is a strange thing. As the years go by it is apt often to call for just such matters-of-fact aids as these if it is to continue in full and most beautiful flowering. Wise is the couple who give it what it needs.

The Trend Continues For Gov. Harmon

The Enquirer's straw vote, which first began with a canvass of buildings, stores and factories in Cincinnati, has extended to other cities of the state, including Dayton, Springfield, Columbus, Toledo, Portsmouth, Piqua, Chillicothe, Pomeroy, Sidney and other cities. The result continues to show the decided trend in favor of Governor Harmon.

The result of the 20th day's canvass follows: Harmon, 7,067; Harding, 3,284; Socialist, 453. Democrats changed to Republicans, 545; Republicans changed to Democrat, 594.

A. W. Campbell, president of the Columbus Street Carmen's Union, in a talk with a group of union miners and potters at Crooksville, said: "Governor Harmon never made a move in our recent strike that did not meet with our approval, and his fair handling of the situation has earned him the almost unanimous support of our men."

SOUTH SIDE BUSINESS NEEDS

A Second Street Subway Should be Promoted at Once—Every Good Citizen Should Do His Part.

The splendid meeting of the South Side Business Men's Association last night was peculiarly productive of good results. Similar meetings have been held for several months, but it was not until last night that the desires and demands of that popular region of our city reached anything like a practical conclusion. The large number of business men present from the other parts of the city showed the general interest that prevails and the goodfellowship of all our citizens who are ready and willing to render the assistance needed to secure what the South Side needs at the earliest practical moment.

The meeting last night developed that what the South Side needs and wants first of all is a sub-way at Second street. When this is accomplished other improvements will follow in due season.

But no more time should be lost. Immediate action is needed in behalf of our South Side citizens and business interests.

The first thing to be done is for the City Council committee to present to the railroad officials a comprehensive plan and specifications for a sub-way at Second street and secure their approval and co-operation as to their share of the expenditure as soon as possible.

Then apply to the County Commissioners for their co-operative action to secure the county's proper share of the expenditure.

Then the city will know what its share of the expenditure will be, and then the Council can provide in some way to raise the funds to meet the cost.

Mr. W. D. Fulton, President of the Council, called on the Advocate office today and expressed his interest in this matter. He has been a student of the question pertaining to municipal emergencies and knows the condition of affairs in a score of other cities as well as Newark. He is confident that the proper legislation can be had to meet any emergency like that which confronts Newark at the present time. With his experience in our municipal affairs, there is no mistake he will be a valuable member to Newark if elected to the coming Legislature.

WAR OF THE REP. BOSSES IS STILL ON

No cessation or lessening of the internecine warfare among the Republican leaders is in sight. There are numerous disagreements, jealousies, and heated conflicts all over the state where the bosses do not have control enough to rule with an iron hand. There is indignation at the treatment of Foraker by the State Committee at Sandusky, Athens, Mansfield, Marietta, Portsmouth, Dayton, Lima and other cities. In as many places there is an equal or greater number of cities where the so-called Republican Progressives are equally indignant because Foraker was invited by the State Committee to make any speeches at all. And so the merry war goes on right in the closing crisis of the campaign.

A specimen of the feeling of hostility within Republican circles is shown by the following statement of George W. Winger, bank cashier and prominent member of the party at Springfield:

"If the Republican leaders are trying to make a joke out of this campaign they are succeeding admirably. They will keep at it until the Democrats elect the entire state ticket, the Legislature and choose a United States Senator."

Mr. J. M. Farmer, who is running for his second term as County Recorder, has demonstrated to the people of Licking county that he is eminently qualified to discharge the duties of the office in a manner that is highly satisfactory. By reason of the fact that he has occupied the office of secretary of the Licking County Agricultural Society for so many years, he is one of the best known men in the county. During his first term as Recorder he has always done the right thing, and on account of his methods of straightforwardness has won the regard and good will of all the people. He has been tried and not found wanting in all the qualifications that go to make a first class official.

WHY THE HIGH TARIFF WAS MADE HIGHER

Senator Bristow, Republican, in a speech at Winfield, Kansas, July 9, 1910, made the following charges, every one of which is a matter of record and can be easily verified:

"When the new tariff passed the lower house of congress, the duty on manufactured rubber was left the same as it had been in the Dingley bill, 20 per cent; in the senate, the rate was raised to 35 per cent; the change was made by Senator Aldrich in the room of the finance committee. This tariff became a law on August 5. Within a month, in September of last year, the news came out that a rubber company was being organized. Within three months the organization was complete; its capital is $40,000,000, its managing head is the son of Senator Aldrich, Senator Aldrich himself is a director and holds 25,000 shares; among the other large stockholders are Simon Guggenheim, senator from Colorado, with 10,000 shares, and four of Senator Guggenheim's brothers, with an aggregate of 33,900 shares. Within three months after its organization, the new rubber company had paid dividends aggregating 15 1/2 per cent."

The people are thus given an insight into the work of tariff tinkering that explains why it was revised upward, instead of downward.

Mr. C. L. Riley, candidate for reelection as Auditor of Licking county has during his first term made a most competent and painstaking official, and has made hundreds of warm friends by the courteous and accommodating manner with which he has treated all who have had business with the office. He is one of Licking county's best citizens and is deserving of the office for the second term, and should receive a magnificent vote from the people at large of Licking county. Mr. Riley's superiority in qualification is an important reason why he should receive an overwhelmingly large vote on November 8. In a generation there has been few men who filled the office of Auditor that possessed the qualification that Clement L. Riley does.

There are a great many Republicans in these latter days who are Democrats without knowing it. They have unconsciously climbed over the tariff wall that divides the two great parties and got back to the place where their party stood in 1854.

Senator Dolliver, Of Iowa, Denounced The Aldrich Tariff

"Not only do I denounce the Payne-Aldrich tariff legislation, but I am not particularly envious of those who passed it."

"I do not like the idea of having customhouse officers write our tariff laws. Behind nearly every one of these veteran experts from the customhouse is the veteran manager of the enterprise that is to be fixed."

The past year witnessed two events of unusual interest, the discovery of the North Pole by Dr. Cook and the revision of the tariff downward by the senator from Rhode Island—each in its way a unique hoax and both promptly presented to the favorable notice of the public by the highest official congratulations.

"An analysis of the Payne-Aldrich tariff, schedule by schedule, and item by item, should convince anyone that so far as the public is concerned the tariff revision in fact carries rates as high or higher than the Dingley tariff law on most articles of general use in their finished condition. Most of the reductions were so trivial as to be ridiculous."

"Our promise to revise the tariff with reference to a set standard of justice and fairness by which our laws would give the advantage to our people of that difference in the cost of production which is known to exist between this market place and the market place of other countries. That was our promise. How did we fulfill it? It was laughed at as ridiculous."

"I have here a little sample of fancy black muslin, and I want to show just what has been done to it. Under the Dingley law the duty was 35 per cent plus 2 per cent, which equals per square yard 6.75 cents. The Aldrich tariff duty is 5 1/4 cents per yard, plus 2 cents, plus 1 cent, equals per square yard 8.14 cents, or an equivalent of 61 per cent. The truth is that this cotton schedule, which came here with a plea to congress not to touch it, left our deliberations with increases ranging all the way from 30 to nearly 100 per cent."

Philadelphia Record: The Democratic candidates for Governor of New York, Massachusetts and Connecticut are indignant over the reckless mendacity of Theodore Roosevelt. But has not he said worse things of Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, Andrew Jackson and other Presidents of the United States? Why, then, should they not treat his misrepresentations of themselves as the idle wind? There is little doubt that the public so regards them.

Quakers Never "Nervous."
It is not in my memory that a professing Quaker ever came into my hands to be treated for nervousness. If the opinion I have already stated so often is correct, namely, that want of control of the emotions and the over-expression of the feelings are prime causes of nervousness, then the fact that discipline of the emotions is a lesson early and constantly taught by Friends would help to account for the infrequency of this disorder among them and add emphasis to the belief in such causation.—From "Self Help For Nervous Women," by Dr. Kearsley Mitchell.

A Remarkable Man.
John Ziska, the great Hussite leader of the fifteenth century, was one of the most remarkable men that ever lived. His life story reads like a romance. Nothing in history is more interesting, more thrilling, than the account of his heroic deeds. Though blind and always greatly outnumbered, Ziska invariably beat his enemies and established for himself a fame that will last forever. He was never beaten in a battle. His very name was a terror to his enemies. He died in 1424, while besieging Prabazislav, at the age of sixty-four.—New York American.

Spoons.
The origin of the spoon is uncertain. It must have been invented at a very ancient date, for it is found among people that have never come into contact with civilization. The necessity of having some implement for dipping water seems to have led first to the invention of the calabash or the use of the coconut shell and later on to the spoon.

CONVENTION OF K. P. LODGES IN CITY THURSDAY

The County Convention of the Knights of Pythias of Licking county held at the Castle Hall of K. P. Lodge, No. 12 on Thursday night, was a great success, nearly every lodge in the county being represented. There were fully three hundred Knights in attendance at the meeting, some sixty being present from Alexandria and about twenty-five from Granville. The other lodges of the county were represented in like proportion.

The reports from all the lodges showed a very prosperous condition and indicated substantial gains in membership.

After the meeting had been called to order the splendid team of Alexandria conferred the Amplified Third degree on three Esquires in a manner that elicited the unstinted praise of all present.

Following the work Judge W. A. Irvine of Newark delivered the address of welcome, which was followed by speeches from a number of members present for the good of the order. "Web" proved decidedly interesting and developed considerable latent oratorical ability.

Past Grand Chancellor Jacob Woehle of Columbus, was the principal speaker of the evening, his remarks proving very interesting. His criticisms as well as his encouragements will doubtless prove of great benefit to the various lodges of the county.

Highly interesting addresses were also made by Mayor J. M. Ankele of Newark, Rev. J. J. Kett of Alexandria, Dr. Burk of Johnstown, Dr. Rohrer of Granville, Stanley Adams of Louisville, Ky.

At the conclusion of the speech-making a splendid banquet, was served in the banquet room of the lodge by the Pythian Sisters.

During the evening splendid music was furnished for the occasion by the Roland Lodge Orchestra of Newark.

Debbling de Crabs.

In the service of a Baltimore family is an old negro cook known as Aunt Sally, and not the least of her achievements is the preparation of sea food.

In the kitchen one day Aunt Sally's nephew, a nine-year-old lad from a point where crabs are seldom seen, was watching in breathless interest the old lady's debbling of a dish of such crustaceans.

"Aunt," asked he after much reflection upon this mysterious point, "does debbil crabs come from de debbil?"

"No, chile," promptly responded Aunt Sally, "but dey is de debbil to make." —St. Louis Republic.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

Little Lamb and the Wild Animals

Here is the Poor Little Lost Lamb

"I isn't always the great, big, strong animal or man that gets along best," said daddy one evening. "Let me tell you about a poor little lamb which fared better than some of the big wild beasts of the forest."

"This lamb was a little creature, afraid of everything, even of his own shadow. His home was near a great forest in which lived wild animals of different sorts, and the lamb's mother warned him many times not to go into the woods. 'If the big beasts catch you they will surely eat you up,' she said."

"Well, one day the foolish little lamb said to himself: 'I'll go just a little way into the woods. I'm sure I can find my way back home before any of the big animals see me.' But he was quite mistaken, for he had gone only a little way among the trees when he became lost, and then, instead of going back to his home, he went farther and farther into the forest. After a time he reached a place where a lot of big, fierce animals were sitting down talking. There were a lion and a tiger and a big deer and a wolf and others. When they saw the little lamb the lion said:

"Well, well, see who is coming! He'll make a nice mouthful for me, I think." And he was just about to get up when the tiger said:

"Oh, let him alone, lion. He's such a tiny fellow he won't make more than a mouthful for you. Besides, we're all too full just now to eat such a tiny thing. Why, he can't roar, he can't run, he can't do anything."

"All right," said the lion. "I don't think he's much good either. He's pretty enough to look at, but he can't make a sound but 'ba-a-a-a.' And all the animals laughed to hear the great big lion make fun of the poor little lamb. Only the lamb didn't laugh. He was too scared."

"Well," the deer said, "I don't think his voice is so very bad, but you ought to see him try to run. I liked him well enough until I saw him leap. He kicks with his hind legs in running, and with all his skipping he gets over very little ground."

"Just then the big animals heard a sound that made them all shiver. It was the hunter's horn. Big and brave as they all were, they were afraid of the man with the gun. So they started to run away, but the hunter and his companions found them all and shot them. When the men reached the place where the little lamb was playing calmly they picked him up and said:

"Why, here is the poor little lost lamb the farmer was asking us to look out for. We'll take him right back where he belongs." And they did so. After that the lamb never wandered away from home."

The CROCKS O' GOLD

By HERMINIE TEMPLETON

NE June morning on a market day at Fethard, while the sun was as yet winking and blinking a sleepy eye over the top of shad-ey Slieve-na-mona, Darby O'Gill stood upon the threshold of his cottage, impatient to be off to the town.

"I was only going to say that ye mustn't be stayin' so late at Fethard that ye'll have to be takin' the short cut home through Hagans' meadow after dark. Ye know they do be sayin' that most an'ny night now ye can see lights movin' round in the ruined abbey where the corks o' gold are hid."

"What put the corks o' gold into yer head?" asked Darby, suspiciously.

"Didn't Mrs. O'Hara tell me only last night that ye put the challenge on her Domine to go huntin' for them?"

"Huh! Domine O'Hara! We hear ducks talkin'! That came out of the bottom of the fourth glass of punch. Haven't ye anny thing sinnible to say, me good woman?"

"Faith, I have, an' it's this: If ye should meet up with that blizzard Bothered Bill Donohue, the tinker—Bridget wagged a warning finger—"have no civility for him or he'll be wantin' to come back with ye to spind the night."

The three comrades were in Fethard by the time Darby reached the old town gate, and from that on it was a slap on the shoulder here, and a back-slapping hand shake there, and a "good save ye" Darby, me bouchal!" everywhere, so that the afternoon was come and gone before the busy lad could spare a thought for any of Bridget's commissions. But through all the friendly greetings of the day there smoldered a constant worry in the man's mind, for whither he was turned, the sharp gray eye of Bothered Bill Donohue, the tinker, followed him from place to place.

"Bad luck to him," muttered Darby, ruefully, "if I bring the thieving blizzard home wid me Bridget'll skiver the two of us. Whist! I know what I'll do, I'll slip into Murphy's stable here an' hide awhile out of sight, an' when the rover's gone I'll whip over to Dugan's an' snail the back dure with me."

No sooner said than done. When at last he ventured over and peeked a cautious head in at the back door of Dugan's shop a well-known voice hailed him:

"Come in, Darby ashore. I've been waitin' for ye this half hour. I'll be goin' home wid ye the night I'm thinkin' to give ye a hand wid the bundles."

And there, sitting calmly on an upturned tub, lolled Bothered Bill Donohue, the tinker.

The two were the last at the market.

As the two men went stumbling along the dark road, Darby was thinking, "By the livin' farmer I have it! I'll tell Bill that I'm goin' over to the abbey to dig for the gold an' I'll ax him to come over an' help me. An' when he rayfuses me—as of course he will—I'll snail him on to Bridget, an' it's myself wouldn't be in his brogues thin for tin new shillings."

Just then Bill spoke up, as if vaguely divining what was in his companion's mind. "My, but ye're the bould man, Darby O'Gill! They were sayin' all over the market today what a courageous harro ye wor to be goin' wid Domine O'Hara after the corks o' gold in the ould abbey."

In spite of the bundles the hero's chest swelled. "Well, I tell ye, Bill," he swaggered, "I'm at a loss about takin' that same Domine O'Hara; he has no more control over his long tongue than if it belonged to yerself, and the wurrd knows that if anny wan so much as mentions a pious wurrd while he's diggin' for them corks o' gold, in a twinkie he may be turned into a big yellow ox, or into a bit of a starved wren. Now ye know yerself, Bill, that while Domine is a nice, daunt man wid the best of intentions, he has wan big fault: ye never know when he's goin' to rip out wid a 'God save ye kindly' or a 'Salus presare us.' Now it's what I wor thinkin' about yerself Bill: ye never said a pious wurrd in yer life, an'—"

"Bad luck to me if I'll do it," interrupted Bill, promptly.

"It'll be near midnight be the time we reach Hagans' meadow," went on Darby, "so we'll have Domine O'Hara go diggin' for himself, an' me an' ye'll go parkinsons."

The offer was like sending Bill with a tub of cold water. He stood still in the road and shivered. "Shoop!" he coughed. "There's nayther luck nor grace in talkin' that kind o' talk!"

"I'll go into the meadow here," Darby continued calmly, "an' do ye, Bill, keep steady on yer way an' ye'll be all safe." The words were spoken to the darkness, for Bill had disappeared.

If the ground in Hagans' meadow had been covered with red-hot coals instead of being carpeted with cool, sweet grass, Darby O'Gill's feet would not have shrunk more from coming in contact with it. However, Bothered Bill was not to be trusted; he might be wandering and loitering in the darkness a few feet down the road, so there was nothing left for it, and Darby, leaving his sock, took the jump and ran a few paces into the meadow field.

He stood, striving with every vein of his body to make out whether the glimmer of light in the distance was from the old abbey or whether it was only a friendly star, when there came a pattering toward him through the darkness a sound of terror—the quick fall of pattering footsteps.

There weren't three men in the barley that could throw a quiver be before them then Darby O'Gill, and never before that night had he put such speed into his peltin' heels. But, fast as he went, the thudding footstep behind galloped on him every second. Suddenly he was absorbed by the most terrible cry he had ever heard. It was a strange voice in a wild, high shriek, calling his name!

"Domine O'Hara O'Gill!" it wailed.

"It's the black bearded fiend from Croon Mah!" thought Darby, and great gasps of terror, how did it get me name?"

And that would have been a mystery for the seven coozies only that just then the moon stuck its head through the clouds and took a quizzical peep at the night. What the knowledgeable man saw then stiffened every nerve and made him his body with angry amazement for from whom had he been running but from Bothered Bill Donohue?

"Darby! Darby! where are ye, Darby?" bleated Bill. Terror had split the tinker's voice into a piping falsetto.

At the sound every shred of Darby's fear turned into white rage.

"The devil made ye!" shouted Darby. "Come back till I baste the face out of ye, ye infernal villain! Where are ye hid? What have ye done with the market?"

But Bill ran on, deaf with terror, and Darby followed. The more that was said the more the tinker would have been proud of their conversation that night.

"Millea mellea, the O'Hara's are the straight for the fairies' bush!" said Darby, "the black bearded fiend!" he roared. Then a strange thing happened. Darby saw the tinker throw up both arms, and with a deploring cry, disappear from the face of the earth. Now in the middle of the night, when stands an ancient clump of holly trees, known for as wide as

Nial lifted a silence finger. "Whatever ye see an' whariver ye hear," he cautioned, "sit not a stir outside that ring of holly till cock-crow. All the cacklin' an' all the cacklin' that can be heard in folve hundreded generations, ye be used this night to frighten ye or to coax ye where they can reach ye!"

"How'll we know when's midnight?" asked Darby. The little ditherer laughed and low, and the sound of that laugh raised the hair on their heads.

"Never mind," he said, "if anny human bean sets foot in the abbey after midnight lookin' for the corks o' gold, there's the holly there an' plenty of them that'll let him know the time o' day. And now, Darby O'Gill, rayfusing to sing that charmin' whinny yer feared. Take up yer hat now, and put it on me head. Good luck go wid ye!" Whisk—he was gone.

By and by the drowsy moon, tossing its heavy blanket of clouds to the top of Slieve-na-mona, slipped higher up into the sky, and after to say out what mischief Bothered Bill Donohue and Darby O'Gill were on.

What was his surprise to find the two bold adventurers at the very gateway of the ruined cloister. There they stood, their arms bulging with holly, and they hesitating and arguing as to which should go in first.

"Ye own folve thirds of the gold, so ye go in first, Darby O'Gill, then only fair!"

"Take yer elbow out of me back," suddenly roared Darby. "Shoop scroogin' me, or be the powers I'll—"

He said no more, for with one tremendous lurch, Bill sent the knowledgeable man sprawling through the broken arch and stumbling with great strides into the dim, shadowy cloister. As soon as the tinker made sure that no misfortune had befallen his friend, he followed Darby into the old abbey. As that was no place for a quarrel, the two set to work, and five minutes later a wide ring of holly encircled the sentinel yew tree, and in the center of this hallowed spot Darby O'Gill and Bothered Bill Donohue, pickaxe and shovel in hand, stood waiting in shivering suspense the first ghostly sign of midnight. The chilling silence and the sense of lurking invisible beings grew heavier.

"How much whiskey have ye left in that jug, Mither O'Gill?"

"Don't you think, Bill," Darby advised softly, "this'd be a fine opportunity for ye to try that 'm'nt'?" The tinker cleared his throat two or three times behind his hand.

"How does it begin, Darby? Isn't it 'Theremns or Tharumns'?" he whispered.

The knowledgeable man started in dismay. "Ye don't mane to tell me ye've forgot the chune?" he asked.

"Oh, I have the tune all right," Bill answered confidently. "It's the warrants that I'm ditherin' about. Do ye sing the warrants, Darby, an' I'll sing the chune."

"Bad luck to ye for a forceful emanation of a tinker," wailed Darby. "Wurra, wurra, I've forgot the warrants too!"

"Well, be the powers of yew holly! I've forgot the chune, I think, but I mane to sing it, an' ye mane to sing the warrants. Look! ye've forgot the warrants, an' ye mane to sing the chune. In the silence, it rang a bell o' warrants. Ye may have forgot the warrants, but ye mane to sing the chune."

For answer, the knowledgeable man sang a snatch of the warrants, and the tinker, who was huddled into the darkness, sang a snatch of the chune. The two men sang in a hoarse, guttural voice, and the sound of their voices seemed to be the only sound in the dark.

were a long, brown cloak that might have been a shroud. The head was drawn so closely around her head that not one plump of the face was visible.

For a moment she remained as motionless as one of the slanting tombstones, then slowly raising a stiff, dead hand, she beckoned the speechless men toward her. "Come over!" she hissed. "Come here the both of ye, till I whisper where the corks o' gold are hid." Although Darby's voice came in choking gulps, he made bold to answer:

"Thank ye kindly, ma'am, we're in no made of yer advice, so if ye'll only go back quiet and daunt to where ye're berried we'll think it greatly infatuatin' of ye. An' if ye're not obligatin' enough to do that little favor, then be the holly I'll take one belt at ye wid this shovel whether or no."

As Darby said this, an amazing thing happened. In the snap of a finger the old woman changed into a raging lion before their bewildered eyes; and giving a roar of fury that sent Bill Donohue a foot up into the air, the great yellow beast went charging around and around the hallowed circle.

"D'ye think I'd better throw the pick at her?" asked Darby. At those words the lion began backing towards the farthest corner of the cloister. Suddenly she stopped; and then after drawing herself together, she made a leap at the spot where they covered.

The beast fell with its two paws almost touching the ring of holly. Then it was that Darby O'Gill by the dint of his high courage made himself forever after the proud boast of the village of Raghinberg. Swiftly stooping, the brave man up with a big sod of turf and without so much as a dhirum, or dhirum, let fly, striking the snarling creature square between the two blazing eyes. A bellow of rage answered the blow.

Then, with a snarl, the lion was gone and the brown old woman flashed into its place. Darby stooped for another sod of turf, but as he did so the faithful old hag with a great swirl of her long brown cloak and a wild, shrieking laugh, vanished into the air.

fair's charm must have lingered with them still, for after a moment or two of stifling silence Darby had spirit enough left to raise his head and exclaim:

"Are ye alive, Bill?"

"How could I be alive?" moaned the tinker. "Isn't this the second time I'm kilt to-night?"

"Then up wid ye man, it'll be cock-crow before we know it." They went at the diggin' again, and Bill had not given five good strokes till his pick struck iron.

"The corks o' gold!" shouted Darby, and the strength returned to their backs, and the power to their arms. No two badgers ever dug dirt with greater speed than did our heroes. Presently the cover of a great black pot began to show itself in the bottom of the hole, and the tinker, glancing to one side, was answered by another metallic ring which told where a second cork was hidden. At the same moment Darby exclaimed:

"I think there's wan over here uther me feet, Bill, an' the ducks take the bit of me if it isn't snail to the top. Oh, blur-an-ages, look who's comin' at us now."

From the farthest black corner of the cloister walls, up almost to the edge of the projecting holly wreath, stretched a broad path of shimmering green light. Down this mysterious gleaming road stalked a gigantic man breathing fire as he came. He was dressed in sinuous black from head to foot, his raven hair stood straight on end, his long face was waxen white and the eyes in his head glowed live living coals. On he came to within a hand's breadth of the holly wreath and then he stood with folded arms. All the seething hate and poisoned malice of the world was crowded into his look.

Darby managed to pull off his hat and to make a scrape of a bow. "The t-top of the a-avenin' to your honor, isn't it a-fine night?" I-I never saw yee lordship lookin' so well, I hear," quavered Darby as he nervously twisted his hat, "that your honor is havin' a great times wid the Garnin philosophers these days. At late Father Cassidy was sayin' so at chapel only last Sunday." It was an unfortunate remark, for at the mention of Father Cassidy a spasm of raging agony convulsed the face of Satan. Sparks of fire spurted from the top of his towering head and his cheeks glowed red like hot iron.

"Why—why, don't ye say somethin', Bill," urged Darby from behind his hat. "The jentleman is lookin' at you. I-I think it's you he's after."

"I—I'm glad to see ye," said the tinker, his teeth chattering. "N-no—I mane, wor ye havin' much rain this mornin' down in, in—"

"Dare done!" roared Satan, and the walls of the abbey shook. "Out of this place before I wither you up like a blasted tree. What fool's work brought you here?"

"Ye sure yer honor don't begrudge us the few dirty handful of gold in the corks below," said Darby.

"Always the gold," sneered Satan. "What good does it bring you, you poor insects of the earth? ye snail! you worms! you scurrying quats!" As all the world knows, from the time a Tipperary lad is the height of yew knee he is a poor hand at takin' an insult. So now Darby's temper got the better of his fears, and he said boldly:

"Kape a civil tongue in yer head, Mr. Belzebub, whatever ye do! I never done annythin' agin ye or yours, did I? I'll make a child's bargain wid ye: D'ye love me alone an' I'll love you alone."

"You rubbish!" roared Satan, "you trembling weeds! You little heaps of dust! You weak-kneed, short-lived, insignificant bipeds!"

The last epithet proved too much for the prudence of the knowledgeable man. "Biped you call me!" he roared. "Ye lunk-headed, gut-fatted, chimbly-pot of a thug! I dare ye to put yer ugly hoof over that holly!"

But Darby got no further, for at these words Satan's rage became something fearful to behold. He bent his breast with his hands, then flung his arms wide apart. At this last gesture the moon winked out and the night became black as your hat. A might wind arose and tore through the old abbey, lashing the yew tree to and fro over their heads. The owls darted this way and that in the sweeping caw, hooting in dismal chorus, and then came the most astonishing wonder of all. The earth cracked open in one wide circle around the now thoroughly conquered men. From this circling crevice an awful sheet of devouring, crimson flame shot up into the sky, Satan, serene and triumphant, framed in the center of the blazing catenact.

There is no telling what the end would have been had the tinker kept steadfastly in mind the important realization that a person must not utter so much as one blasphemous word while searchin' for the corks of gold. But the endurance was pretty well shaken out of Bill by this time. He could only throw up his hands and exclaim, "God help us!"

Those were the fateful words. That prayer settled the business of the corks of gold. Immediately a crash of thunder split the whole world, the sky must have fallen; the two men went down into the hole like leaden plummetts; the earth heaved and swayed like a billowy sea and after that there fell a deadly silence. Then, clear through the distance from Hooligan's farm came the warning sound of a crowing cock.

It was a moment or two before either of our sticken adventurers got control of himself. Darby was quick to open his eyes. "The rinnergade is gone! Quick, Bill, the corks o' gold. Hurroo, we're not late yet!" No wonder Ballinderg is proud of the O'Gills.

But Bill was already on his feet, gazing at the spot where the wide world had been, for, lo and behold, not only had the corks vanished, but the hole itself was gone; it was filled to the top. And this was not all; the linterings and daisies, without so much as a broken stem, were nodding and bobbing in the first morning breeze.

Half an hour later our two heroic adventurers, loaded to the chin with bedraggled bundles, hesitated anxiously on the threshold of the O'Gill cottage. Bridget turned from the breakfast she was preparing and transfixed them with a scornful glare. Then from the doorkill where they stood the tired wanderers together poured forth an eloquent account of their night's wonderful adventures. From the beginning to the end of the dual narrative Bridget never moved a single muscle, but stood motionless on the hearthstone, her lips on her lips.

When the two dashed treasure hunters had finished their story, Bridget turned a muscle of her face, her eyes were fixed on the floor, her lips were fixed on the floor, her eyes were fixed on the floor, her lips were fixed on the floor.

"Darby! Darby! where are ye, Darby?" bleated Bill. Terror had split the tinker's voice into a piping falsetto.

At the sound every shred of Darby's fear turned into white rage.

"The devil made ye!" shouted Darby. "Come back till I baste the face out of ye, ye infernal villain! Where are ye hid? What have ye done with the market?"

But Bill ran on, deaf with terror, and Darby followed. The more that was said the more the tinker would have been proud of their conversation that night.

M. L. ROSE SUCCEEDS TO ATTACK OF APOPLEXY AND PASSES AWAY.

Granville Farmers Putting Down Gas Wells — Athletics at Denison University.

Granville, Oct. 28.—Mr. M. L. Rose, one of Granville's oldest and most respected citizens has passed away. Several days ago while engaged in milking Mr. Rose was stricken with apoplexy and fell over unconscious. He was later found in that condition and was carried into the house when a physician was summoned who did all in his power for him, but to no avail, as he died on Thursday, being 72 years old. Mr. Rose was one of the oldest native born citizens of the county, being past seventy-two years old. He is survived by his aged widow and one son. The funeral services will be held at the home of the deceased on Saturday afternoon, October 29, and the services will be conducted by the Rev. Mr. Newell, pastor of the Presbyterian church of which denomination the deceased had long been a prominent member. The interment will be made in Maple Grove cemetery.

A rig was moved Thursday on the farm of John S. Graham, ex-county commissioner, on upper London street. The well is being put down by Mr. Graham and a few of his neighbors and friends. The well is located about the middle of the farm and Contractor Pierce has been awarded the contract for drilling the well.

Cross Country running is another form of athletics that has found favor with Denison. Every afternoon now there are a number of fellows who trot around a four to six mile hilly country road course more for their pleasure and benefit than for the amount of cheering they receive when they come down the homestretch. On Monday afternoon, October 31, weather permitting, a preliminary will be held for the purpose of selecting a team of five men to run against a similar team from the Ohio Wesleyan over the Granville course on November 5, the day of the Denison-Wittenberg football game. The track management predicts a fast team in the Cross Country run for Denison this fall. Orcutt, Webb, Curman and Heinrichs are a rather hard bunch to run away from and Ohio Wesleyan is going to have no small amount of trouble in taking back a scalp when they return on November 5. Additional meets will be run later in the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Kane Little of Dayton, O., who have been visiting relatives and friends in Granville and vicinity during the past several weeks, returned to their home on Friday, after having had a most enjoyable visit.

The regular meeting of the Scientific Association will be held in Barney Science Hall on next Tuesday evening, November 1, at 8:30 o'clock. Dr. G. E. Coghill will speak on "The Interrelation of Organic Behaviour, Development and Heredity as Biological Problems." Section reports will be given by Prof. Wood and Dr. McKibben.

Miss Theresa Dillinger, a charming young woman of Pittsburg, who has been visiting Miss Laura Denman here for a few days, returned home Thursday.

The members of the Sigma Delta Phi Sorority are now occupying their new chapter house in the Shepardon Park addition, which the contractors recently finished. The members of this sorority now have a beautiful home.

The different literary societies of the university are now busily engaged in preparing for another season in debating. The work will be managed on a new and improved basis.

Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Hooper of Columbus, have gone to Alexandria, Mr. Hooper's old home, where they will make a short visit.

The members of the Shepardon faculty will be at home to all their friends on Tuesday, November 1, from 3:30 to 5:00 o'clock, in Stone Hall. It is especially desired that a further acquaintance may be established.

Helsey got less than one-half million volume in the Jacob Showman well between Newark and Granville.

Helsey has made locations on the farms of David Owens, one mile east of Granville, and S. F. Van Voorhis, just east of Central City.

The Misses Pauline Gillespie of Malta and Anna Porter of McConnellsville, who have been visiting relatives and friends in and near Alexandria for some days, are now making a short visit with Granville friends.

Dr. Walter R. Cochran, a former well known Denison student, and a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, has purchased the Dresden Transcript.

Robert Smith, a Denison student, with several other students, has been elected to the position of president of the Denison Athletic Association.

JOKERS CRATE THE BRIDE AND GROOM

Lima, Oct. 28.—Practical jokers placed H. A. Keller of Columbiana and Miss Hazel Elizabeth Holderman of Leipsic in a crate similar to that used in consigning live stock, securely bound them and shipped them from Leipsic to Lima in the baggage compartment of an Ohio Electric car. The couple were married at Leipsic Wednesday and were preparing to leave on a honeymoon trip when made captives.

FRECKLES

October Worst Month for This Trouble—How to Remove Easily.

There's a reason why nearly everybody is freckled after the outdoor life of summer, but happily there is also a cure for those ugly blemishes, and no one need stay freckled. Simply get one ounce of Othine—double strength from W. A. Erman & Son, and apply a little of it at night, and in the morning you will see that even the worst have begun to disappear, while the light ones have vanished entirely. Now is the time to rid yourself of freckles, for if not removed now they will stay all winter and spoil an otherwise beautiful complexion. Money back if it fails.

PAN LIFTER

Grips Pan at Handle and Prevents Burning of Fingers.

Cooks have been heard to exclaim with surprise that the big oblong frying pan is equipped with handles at all. This moveable wire clutches that move this pan are always lying flat along the handle of the pan and they get to the handle cannot be touched with the bare hand and are hard to grip with a cloth. A Texas woman has come to the rescue with a pan lifter which eliminates all danger of burns. This lifter has a handle with upwardly and downwardly curving jaws at the end and a further projection at the upper end. The lower jaw is inserted under the handle that holds the wire handle of the frying pan and the downwardly projecting lip is dropped into them. With the lower jaw acting as a lever and the upper one gripping the end of the pan, the latter can be lifted off the stove or drawn out of the oven. It is used for roasting, without the cook's hand coming within six inches of the extension at the top can be used to hold a lid on the pan if there is one.

NEW SYSTEM OF FAT REDUCTION.

The saying that "there is nothing new under the sun" does not now apply to fat people. Here is something new for them—a new sensation, a new pleasure, a new and graceful figure, easily found by anyone who is passing beyond the limits of slenderness. Everyone has heard of the Marmola Prescription; that harmless combination of fat-defying elements discovered by one of our foremost physicians. Now, from the same high authority, there comes another idea—the idea of condensing these same pure, harmless ingredients into a pleasant little tablet. Taken after eating and at bedtime they help on the stomach to dispose of all the fatty foods, converting them into compact, solid flesh, muscle and energy, without dieting or exercise. Marmola Prescription Tablets regulate the entire system—do for you what bodily exertion and self-denial can not do and the fat, once routed, is gone for good. You can prove all this at a trial. The Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists or sent post paid by the Marmola Co., 651 Monroe Ave., Detroit, Mich. A large dose is sufficient to bring lasting results—but, 25c.

RAZOR USED ON THE CHEF AT SHERWOOD

Dispute Between Kitchen Employees
Results in Battle—Raid on Kern's Place.

A bloody battle between two employees of the Sherwood hotel took place in the kitchen of that hostelry yesterday afternoon, when Robert Austin attacked J. W. Black with a razor and seriously cut him about the neck. The slashing attack was the result of a quarrel between the men.

According to his story, Black, who is the chef, was sitting in the kitchen doing some work, when Austin dashed up behind him, waving a bad looking razor. Before he had an opportunity to protect himself, the infuriated man is alleged to have slashed him several times with the razor, inflicting several nasty wounds.

The police were called and a 10-minute search in a few minutes Austin was arrested by Patrolman Quinn. In police court this morning Austin was charged with cutting and intent to kill and to this charge he pleaded not guilty and was bound over to the grand jury in the sum of $200.

The Gus Kerns place at the corner of Second and Walnut streets, was again raided by the police last night and Kerns and his bartender, John, were arrested. Several half-gallons of whisky were found. The raid was made at 7:30 o'clock by Patrolmen Gorman, Donley, Moore, Swinehart and Keenan. The hearing of the case was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Mayor's office.

Charles, a with selling liquor to Benjamin Varnier, a minor, U. G. Craig was arrested last night by Patrolmen Humberg and Wm. Burk and locked up, but later was released on bond. The affidavit for Craig's arrest was sworn to by Charles Varnier, the father of the boy. Craig's hearing was held this afternoon.

The case against G. Craig, charged with selling liquor to a minor, who was to have been heard in the Mayor's office, has been postponed until next Tuesday. Gus Kerns, charged with selling liquor to a minor, was also postponed until next Tuesday. The case against Kerns was postponed until next Tuesday.

CANAL GRAFT PROBE STARTED AT COLUMBUS

Columbus, Oct. 23.—The canal graft probe opened today. The entire morning was used in preparing to support marker's charge that Contractor Likens of Akron received $100 from the N. and O. railroad for work done with state employees and state material.

This is said to have happened in March, 1908. All the state records for this period are on hand for examination. It was found that the pay roll carries nothing to show where work was done. It carries them for the time in question but nothing more. Marker says he can and will produce witnesses to testify that his charges are facts.

The first witness was W. L. Bender, canal engineer at Canton. He was supposed to have personal knowledge of the N. and O. job. He denied that he had been present but said he understood there was a contract between the state and the road covering this repair work.

Your Nerves Are What Ails You.

Don't lay the blame to stomach, blood, heart, bowels. They're not to blame. The responsibility of most of the range of human ailments is its nerves that are the real offenders. But don't leave it to nature alone to make them well. Nature can only go so far. When that point is reached, nature needs aid—ought to have it. But the lack of a stimulant is not an aid. You can't help nature that way. Apply to medicine to torments, which will only stimulate, a tonic, which is a spur.

Hazen Morse's Glyceroide of Celery is the time to build up your nerves and your body as a whole. It is an old, tried, and true remedy. For a person's stomach, for a person's bowels, for a person's nerves, for a person's blood, for a person's strength, for a person's vitality, for a person's whole body, inside and out.

NOVEL AIR TOY

New Turns of the Hand Enough to Send It Spinning Across Room

A most ingenious little toy that is right in line with the present craze for things serial in that here depicted. It is so simple that anyone can make it and it will amuse the children for hours. Take a strip of thin, light metal—aluminum if you can get a piece of that or celluloid. Cut out of it a pair of elliptical wings, each about four or five inches long and connected by a thinner strip. Bend these wings near their centers till what was originally the top of one becomes the lower side, thus forming a pair of blades.

SALES IN STRAIGHT LINE

Like the propeller of a boat or of an airplane, for that matter. Then take a stick about eight inches long and from one end to a quarter of an inch thick and nail the wings to one end of it. This done, hold the device with the wings up and the stick between the palms of the hand. Give it a twist or two, with the last motion shooting it forth into the air and you will be surprised to see it sail straight forward for a distance of from twenty to thirty feet before it begins to descend an inch.

Rheumatism Is A Blood Disease

You can't coax rheumatism out of the system by using liniments or plasters. You must overcome the cause, which is Uric Acid. Nature presents a remedy that destroys Uric Acid. It is POTOSOTE—The Condensed Mineral Water. POTOSOTE goes into the blood to and the Uric Acid. It meets it there, dissolves it and carries it out of the system through the activity of the Kidneys and Bowels. POTOSOTE and Uric Acid can't live together in the same blood, so the Uric Acid must go. When that is gone your Rheumatism is gone also. POTOSOTE represents in powdered form the famous mineral waters of the world. A teaspoonful in a glass of water makes a pleasant active mineral water that Nature has designed in her great laboratory. 35c. PACKAGE! ALL DRUGGISTS.

THE FRIENDLY CLUB FOR Y. M. C. A. BOYS

Columbus, Oct. 23.—Primed with enthusiasm for a new project intended to have a national scope, Columbus will be represented at the International Y. M. C. A. gathering at Toronto by half a dozen delegates who have been assured of the co-operation of the entire Ohio contingent, some fifty strong, in the noble purpose of launching "The Friendly Club" and of bringing to this city the next triennial convention of Y. M. C. A. of the world.

The founder of the Friendly Club is J. A. Metcalf of this city, a prominent merchant who is also active in Y. M. C. A. work. The originator of the scheme desires the Friendly Club as an organization to take care of bad boys before they get bad. Another definition is a Knights of Pythias for boys.

The prime reason of the Friendly Club will be to inculcate the ordinary virtues of intelligence, fidelity, sobriety and honesty, coupled with the obligation of each member to shake hands with any other and every other member whenever and wherever they may meet. In order that these members may recognize one another, they are to wear a gold badge or button, showing their hands. Mr. Metcalf will supply a quantity of these that may be worn in the state of Ohio. At Toronto he expects to find similar well-disposed men from every state in the Union. He has been assured by the local Y. M. C. A. leaders that once the movement is launched, the Y. M. C. A. will get behind it and keep it going. It will be sort of "Blue Lodge" for the boys from which they will gradually take natural steps into the third degree of Y. M. C. A. work.

HOW HE WAS SAVED

By WILLIS BEACH POTTER

Copyright, 1918, by American Press Association

There had been a lot of fussiness in Galloway county, and the people was hot to find some one to string up for a warner. Ole Man Thompson had been murdered in his bed and $200 taken. Bill Stinson was held up on the road and relieved of his watch and chain. These and other crimes were committed, yet no one was arrested.

About that time my brother Tim come from California and was stayin' with me on the farm. Tim was a peaceable feller as you ever see—wouldn't hurt nobody. But he liked to hunt, and it bein' in the fall of the year, when game was plenty, I got a lot of my friends to go over into Mason county, where there was woodcock. We took a kit with us, calculatin' to be gone a week.

Waal, one evenin' when we was collectin' in camp all on us got in except Tim. When we set down to supper he wasn't there, and when it was time to turn in we was obliged to do it without him. I wanted to go out and hunt for him, but the rest 'lowed I couldn't find him in the dark, that he'd got lost or some'n and would turn up next day.

Waal, about midnight I was woke up by Tim himself.

"By gum, Tim!" I says, "Have 'e seen a ghost?"

He was the most skeered feller you ever seen—white as the snow and his teeth a chatterin'. As soon as he could fetch his breath he said:

"They're comin' to hang me. I was watchin' fer birds when I met a man who looked at me kind of queer. He went off and come back with two other men. They all tied my hands and took me to a small town. A feller was brought in, who looked at me and said, 'That's him.' Then they all set around and talked me over. I knew they took me for some un else, and there wasn't no use tryin' to make 'em think I wasn't. Most of 'em was for hangin' me right up at once. They said if the law got a hold of me I'd never be punished. I begged so hard for 'em to give me one day to prove who I was that at last they consented.

"They took me to some un's office and left me in charge of two of 'em. One of the two left me in charge of the other, while he went off to get some'n for 'em both to drink. He brought back a bottle, which they finished, then the other one, he went off and got another bottle, and by the time they'd drank that they was both drunk. First one went to sleep then the other. I dug out and here I am. As soon as I'm missed I'll be foiled."

I woke up the other men, Abe Woodruff and Oliver Swayne, and we held a consultation. Ef they come to take Tim there'd probably be enough of 'em to take him in spite of all we could do, but we was four shotguns in the party and concluded to put up a fight rather'n have 'em take him. About 4 o'clock in the mornin' we heard the barkin' o' dogs, and I knowed they'd find Tim shore, since they was after him with bloodhounds.

We wasn't far from Jimtown, where there's a postoffice, and the railroad runs through it. While we was consultin' we seen a man git up on a platform and hang a mail bag to one o' them posts what's used fer deliverin' the bag to a man in the mailcar on a passin' train without its stoppin'. The man left the bag and went away. The barkin' was comin' mighty near, and I concluded I'd go out and meet the posse and have a talk with 'em. Restin' my shotgun across the pommel of my saddle, I rode forward, crossin' the track beside which the mail bag hung, lookin' in the night for all the world like a man swingin' on a gallows. At first it seemed it meant that my brother would swing shore. Then all on a sudden an idee come to me. There was a faint light in the east when I met the party comin' down the road. I counted ten of 'em.

"Hello!" I says. "What's up?"

"Yistiday," said one on 'em, "we caught the man that killed ole Thompson. Sam Jones found him hidin' in a wood. We tuk him and was keepin' him under guard till tomorrer mornin' to hang him. Alf Andrews and Charlie Moore was watchin' him, but he got 'em both drunk and lit out."

"Waal," says I, "there's two crowds of us go onto the same purpose, and we got ahead of you. He was hidin' from us when you tuk him. When he escaped, like a fool, he run right agin us. We strung him up at once, fearin' he'd git away if we didn't."

"You don't mean it?"

"Yes, we done it."

"What did you hang him?"

"Right over there. I kin show him to you, but we don't want no interference with the body, since I give him my word of honor I'd send it to his wife for burial."

I tuk 'em where they could see the mail bag, but not very near it.

"It looks all right," said the leader of the party, "but I think we'd ought to see that it's our man."

"No," I says, "I've done all I ort to do showin' you the corpse. We got a huntin' party over there, and I'm shore some of 'em would let any one interfere."

They consulted, and, seein' we was armed and they wasn't, they concluded to turn around and go back. But they didn't doubt the mail bag was a swingin' corpse.

Tim went back to California.

SURELY BREAKS UP A BAD COLD IN A FEW HOURS

Pape's Cold Compound is the result of three years' research at a cost of more than fifty thousand dollars, and contains no quinine, which we have conclusively demonstrated is not effective in the treatment of colds or grippe.

It is a positive fact that a dose of Pape's Cold Compound, taken every two hours until three consecutive doses are taken, will end the Grippe and break up the most severe cold, either in the head, chest, back, stomach, limbs or any part of the body.

It promptly relieves the most miserable neuralgia pains, headache, dullness, head and nose stuffed up, feverishness, sneezing, sore throat, running of the nose, mucous catarrhal discharges, soreness, stiffness and rheumatic twinges.

Take this harmless Compound as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine made anywhere else in the world, which will cure your cold or end Grippe misery as promptly and without any other assistance or bad after-effects, as a 25 cent package of Pape's Cold Compound, which any druggist in the world can supply.

ROUSING MEETINGS IN COUNTRY

People Show Enthusiasm for Democratic Ticket By Packing the Halls.

Two splendid Democratic meetings were held Thursday night, one at Jacksontown and the other at Vanatta. Both meetings were largely attended and the utmost enthusiasm was manifested.

The meeting at Jacksontown was held in the township house, which was packed to the doors with Democrats and a goodly number of Republicans.

Mr. Orr, one of the live Democrats of the township, was the chairman of the meeting and made a short introductory speech which caught the crowd, after which he introduced the first speaker of the evening, Mr. Rodger Jones, who confined his remarks principally to the all-important question of graft.

His speech was one calculated to set the people to thinking. He also spoke of the many sterling qualities of each of the candidates on the Democratic primary ticket, and said that if the same indicated anything, every candidate on the Democratic ticket would be elected on the night of November 5, a large majority.

His remarks were greeted by shouts of enthusiastic applause on several occasions.

Mr. Phil B. Smythe, Democratic candidate for prosecuting attorney of Lincoln county, was the next speaker. He directed his remarks chiefly to a discussion of the tax question, favoring the one per cent tax limit. He called the attention of his auditors to the fact that the traffic schedules on the necessities of life had been raised, while those on luxuries had been lowered. Mr. Smythe is an excellent speaker and he was complimented on all sides over the clever manner in which he fairly presented the issues in the present political battle.

A number of the candidates were present, among them being Robbins Hunter, candidate for probate judge; J. M. Farmer, candidate for county recorder, and W. D. Fulton, candidate for representative, all of whom made short and telling addresses.

The meeting at Vanatta was held in the township house, and was one of the best and most enthusiastic held there for a long time.

Mr. Patterson, one of the best known and hardest working Democrats of the township, was chairman of the meeting, and made a rattling good speech on the tariff question, and then introduced Mr. A. A. Reator of the state treasurer's office at Columbus, as the first speaker. He delivered a most able and instructive talk regarding the manner in which the state funds had been handled under Republican administrations and what was being done under Governor Harmon's administration by the state treasurer. He showed that a large increase of interest had been derived under the Democratic administration, which went to the credit of the people. He also made a special plea for the Democratic legislative ticket, showing that the election of a Democratic legislature would largely assist Governor Harmon in carrying out the reforms he was planning, and that the election of a Republican legislature meant the continuance of Aldrichism, the trusts and the protection of graft.

Mr. T. E. Fulton of Newark, was the next and last speaker of the evening. Mr. Fulton showed that the tariff was always made for the benefit of the millionaire and the trusts and against the interests of the common people. He gave one illustration showing that the Aldrich bill put hides on the free list, compelling farmers to sell in competition with the whole world, but that the same bill put a protection on the manufactured products, thus compelling them to pay an advanced price for shoes and other leather products of shoes and other products was never as high as now, under the Aldrich bill.

THE PRESENT INSTANT.

Science Defines It as the Hundredth Part of a Second.

A congress of European astronomers decided that the present time—that is, the present moment at any particular instant—consists of the hundredth part of a second. This has been settled on because these men of science have thought that it represented the tiniest fraction of time which could be appreciated by the human brain. Yet the thousandth part of a second is actually used in physical science, especially in certain important uses of electricity.

For scientific purposes, however, the official present moment flashes from the future to the past in the hundredth part of a second. This cannot seem so remarkable when it is recalled that speed records for both horses and men runners are officially calculated in fractions as small as one-fifth of a second.

But in astronomy it is needed to have the hundredth part of a second, for in that moment light can travel 2,000 miles. So time, which is, after all, only a figure of speech and is a mystery that no human brain can understand or fathom, must be considered relatively to one's sensations. The time to pull an aching tooth is really much longer to the sufferer than a whole night spent in sound sleep. It is more of the person's actual life. It demands more food to stand the nervous strain and the pain than hours of quiet rest.

Time, then, for all men is relative to their personal sensations. Yet time is real enough. It takes actual time for starlight to travel, in some cases thousands of years. It takes time for sound to travel and time for the electric wave to work actual results over long distances.

So that time is not only theoretical; it is as real as coal and wood. Yet this reality stretches over a human lifetime back to ages before the existence of the sun and the stars. For purposes of ordinary human work the second is small enough to use as a standard of value, but scientific men have progressed so far in knowledge that the second is too long a period for them to consider as the scientific instant. Therefore they have chosen the hundredth of a second as the standard for the length of time that they will consider as the actual moment at any one instant.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA

A Disorder Which Yields to the Tonic Treatment as This Philadelphia Case Shows.

There is a form of indigestion in which the stomach may be in a perfectly sound condition. This is called nervous dyspepsia and arises from a disturbance of the nervous system which controls the digestive process. That the nerves do control this process is evident from the fact that acute emotions such as grief or despair immediately stop digestion, and that an injury to the brain or a nerve center causes nausea and other disturbances of the stomach. The digestive fluids such as saliva and gastric juice are the product of cells which are abundantly supplied with nerve fibres, and the mere expectation of food will start the flow of these fluids.

An instance in which this form of nervous trouble was readily cured by the tonic treatment was that of Mr. Joseph Waldon, of 818 North Eighth street, Philadelphia, Pa. He says:

"I think my nervousness was due to railroad work with its long hours and irregular meals. I was sick for four or five years and at one time was confined to bed. I had no desire for food and was generally distressed by what I ate. I had heartburn, gas formed on my stomach, and often I had to vomit. I got out of breath and would have palpitation of the heart if I exerted myself. My head ached a great deal and some days would be so bad that I would have to quit work and come home. I had no strength or ambition, was pale and very nervous. I was restless and could not sleep well for I could suddenly wake up through the night with a startled feeling."

"The doctor said I had nervousness but his prescriptions did not help me. Some of my friends advised me to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I did and got better in a short time. I took quite a few boxes in all and was completely cured."
